PRISON IS READY TO ELECTROCUTE BABY KIDNAPER

Press Arrangements Completed; Governor Hoffman to Set Hearing Date

TKENTON, N. J., Jan. 3.—(UP)—Arrangements for the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann entered the final stage today.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman was expected to announce the date upon which the Court of Pardons will review the condemned man's application for clemency—his last hope for life. It is believed the court will meet Monday or Tuesday.

At a conference yesterday Colonel Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper of the state prison, completed press arrangements. Only representatives of press associations and local newspaper men will see Hauptmann die. In about 30 persons will be witnesses, 18 of them newspaper men. Six press passes only are allotted by law, but the jury of twelve persons which must officially attest the execution was chosen from the press. The remaining 12 men in the room will be prison officials, doctors, guards, and Robert Elliott, the official executioner of several eastern states.

Col. Kimberling will post a guard of state troopers around the prison on the night Hauptmann dies. Traffic will be blocked off and spectators will not be allowed through the lines.

An empty shop, just outside the prison walls will serve as press quarters. There news services will get up special wire. No equipment will be installed until the day of the execution. Broadcasting and newsreel equipment were barred.

LUTHERAN CLUB TALKS "EVENTS"

Current Topics Cause, Interest; Next Session Jan. 16

Owing to the icy condition of streets and country roads and the general inclemency of the weather, the first session of Trinity Lutheran brotherhood held Thursday evening, was not well attended, but nevertheless was interesting.

Luther Bower, the newly installed president, was in the choir and the meeting was opened by the entire Brotherhood singing "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," after which Dr. G. J. Troutman read the Ninety-First Psalm and offered prayer.

During the business session, Mason Klingensmith, chairman of the committee on erection of a hand rail in the main church vestibule, asked that an extension of time be granted to complete the work.

Committee Named

As a visiting committee for the year, the president appointed Rev. G. L. Troutman, Mason Klingensmith, H. H. Groce, George Eitel, Carl F. Seitz and Charles L. Mack.

Emil Hrobon, Pickaway Country Club pro, was received into membership.

At the close of the business meeting, R. L. Brehmer satisfied the hungry with Southern style bread, bean soup and coffee.

C. A. Leist was to have been in charge of the program but owing to illness, his son Carl acted in his father's stead, presenting the material that he had prepared on "Current Events."

After a general resume of the Hauptmann trial, Mr. Leist appointed Edward Sensesbrenner to conduct the period of discussion, which was entered into heartily and proved to be an interesting feature. Next the subject of "Will Rogers" was taken up and many new angles on his life were brought out in the discussion. After a somewhat lengthy presentation of the "Ethiopian Question," Mr. Leist designated Rev. Troutman to lead the arguments on this much mooted question.

"Townsend" Discussed

Finally the "Townsend Plan" was brought into the lime light with J. D. Hummel leading the discussion. This question provoked considerable argument and occupied the time until adjournment.

At the next regular meeting to be held on Jan. 16 all boys of the congregation over 12 years of age will be invited and Rev. Troutman will be chairman in charge of the program with C. G. Chalfin as head of the lunch committee.

The contest over "spots" on the CBS is being interesting. Eddie Cantor has been in a tough place for a long while trying to compete with Major Edward Bowes' hour. Now Eddie gets a break—does he get a break?

He is to start on the CBS in the place formerly occupied by Alexander Woolcott, but his competitor for interest will be Jack Benny, Mary Livingston, Kenny Baker, and Johnny Green's orchestra.

Many listeners would like to hear both comies, and can't, after the change is made.

Woolcott is leaving because his sponsor has left him.

HOUSE TO FACE JOB OF RAISING BILLION IN CASH

Three Veterans' Units Agree on Non-Inflationary Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(UP)—The House of Representatives meeting today for the second session of the 74th congress was confronted with need for $1,000,000,000 of quick new revenue to meet the latest proposal of war veterans who want their bonus.

The veterans have abandoned the Patman $2,200,000,000 currency inflation bill. In a sudden coordination of effort the three major veterans' organizations agreed on a non-inflationary measure. It calls for immediate cash outlay of $1,000,000,000.

President Roosevelt warned congress last spring that failure to provide revenue—taxes—to meet the bonus obligation was sufficient in itself to warrant a veto.

Leaders Non-Committal

Rep. Fred M. Vinson, who will sponsor the new bill in the house, and Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, who gave it his name in the senate, promised to work for speedy action. Administration leaders were non-committal.

Support for the bill was sought by heads of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans, who joined in advancing it on the eve of the new congress. It was the first time these organizations have been united on one form of payment.

They declared their "opposition to confusion of the bonus issue with any other matters" and asked congress to support their joint measure. A vote before Jan. 15 has been predicted.

The new bill is known as "The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans Bill."

The proposal appeared to be aimed at the rejection of the inflationary bill sponsored last session and to be offered again this by Rep. Wright Patman, D. Tex. The senate sustained a presidential veto last session to block its enactment.

DISTRICT TO BALLOT ON SCHOOL BOND ISSUE

CHILLICOTHE, Jan. 3.—Today was election day in the Southeastern rural school district of Ross Co. For the second time a vote will be taken to determine whether $200,000 worth of bonds will be issued for the construction of new school buildings.

The district, newly created, is one of the largest in the state. The issue on Oct. 31st was defeated by 49 votes but at that time the district was aroused by dissension and involved in litigation started by Franklin-two residents who desired to be separated from the big district. The case has been settled in common pleas court upholding the creation of the district.

Regular voting places will be used with volunteer workers to save election costs. If the issue is approved the district has been assured of a federal grant of $163,000. The district plans a central high school building, elementary units at Richmondale and Londonderry and an addition to the building at Pride.

CHURCH PLANS SERIES

The Ashville United Brethren church has plans completed for a series of meetings to begin Sunday evening, Jan. 5, at 7:30 o'clock.

The Adams sisters will have charge of the singing and the children's programs and will be able assistants in any parts of the services. Rev. O. W. Smith, pastor, will bring the messages each evening except Saturday, unless the progress of the meetings demand a change.

Starbuck said she had been halted by a car containing two men and a woman at Colerain, who dragged her into the auto when she refused their demand for money. She was forced to eat some candy which was doped, she said, making her lose consciousness.

Her husband was expected here today to take her home.

3 NURSES REINSTATED

URBANA, Jan. 3.—(UP)—Three Champaign-co hospital nurses, suspended Dec. 25 for alleged neglect of duty, were reinstated today by Superintendent P. W. Bowen and the Board of County Commissioners.

The nurses were suspended for their alleged failure to obey instructions given by County Prosecutor Grace F. Heck and Coroner David H. Moore, in connection with the death of James Clark, an assault victim.

Miss Heck and Moore charged the nurses with neglect of duty and with failure to submit to a medical examination. The nurses were reinstated by the Board of County Commissioners.

A disgruntled nurse alleged that political pressure was applied to submit to a medical examination. But why, she asked, did we hear from that nurse just what to expect?

OPEN LETTERS

TO MAYOR GRAHAM

DEAR SIR: On the first day of your administration you took action which deserves comment. It is your effort to enforce traffic regulations, and to seek closer co-operation between your police department, the sheriff and his deputies, and the state highway patrol. The city's traffic fund could be increased by a large amount annually if the persons who carelessly drive through red lights, endangering their lives and properties and those of other motorists were ordered into court. Whether you fine them is up to you to determine, but I believe your stern edict that the law be enforced will do much toward reducing accidents. It has long been a fact that petty jealousy has done much to reduce the measure of co-operation between city and county police, and I believe your overtures to Sheriff Radcliff will help create an efficient situation that has not existed for a long while.

CIRCUITEER

TO BUSINESS MEN

MERCHANTS: A new year has arrived and with it comes new high hopes for success. Leading manufacturers, mercantile leaders, and others are predicting a continued upswing in the new year, and are putting forward every effort to do their part. In a large way, the success of 1936 rests on your own shoulders. Will you be aggressive, seek business, or will you sit back and lament because some other business man is doing more than you? Let people know what you are selling; inform them of your prices, your bargains; keep your stores clean and attractive, and stock with up-to-date goods. Many factors can help business, but your own ability means much to your success.

CIRCUITEER

CITIZENS: The time of the year is fast approaching when candidates for various Pickaway-co offices will be circulating nominating petitions. Several county offices, including two commissioners' jobs,

That's the way some of the natives look on the 1936 political race, too. The Republicans will predict dire happenings unless their man is elected president. But the folk will be so busy that they will say "Oh, we guess we're doing as well as could be expected under Roosevelt."

Of course, this is in the south. And the south will be Democratic anyway. Don't let any soothsayer fool you on that. The conservative states' rights Democrats are as mad as a wet hen concerning Mr. Roosevelt, but it would be considered heresy to leave the Democratic party.

Besides, any conservative Democratic running for re-election is certain to come out "whole-heartedly" for Mr. Roosevelt prior to the primaries (which, in the south, is amount to an election). Farmers and workers are strongly pro-Roosevelt—and (as one person remarked to me yesterday) "there are many rich folk here." Even former pro-Long men in Louisiana now are saying: "We're Roosevelt."

There are many persons who believe they are entitled to some kind of a county job and may get into the race for that reason. It is up to the two political parties to use their influence to weed out the candidates, to be certain their party is represented by the best possible nominees. Many elections have been spoiled because many persons sought nominations, the winner having to face combined opposition from all the persons he or she defeated. I urge the citizens of the county to be fair to their fellows, and to themselves, to use careful judgment before entering political contests.

CIRCUITEER

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

GENTLEMEN: Your recent action in posting a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons stealing livestock and grain in the county is a splendid move toward finer law enforcement. Sheriff Charles Radcliff deserves bouquets for his record in clearing thefts and I feel this reward will aid him materially in solving many stubborn cases. The knowledge of a reward often brings information to officers that otherwise could not be obtained.

CIRCUITEER

TO HIGHWAY, STREET WORKERS

GENTLEMEN: You are to be complimented on your fine work in clearing the streets and highways after the recently heavy snowfall. Many of you left your festal boards on the holidays to make the highways safe for travelers. The distribution of sand and cinders prevented many accidents and Pickaway-co has a record of no serious accidents during the holiday season. Travelers have been loud in their praise of the condition of roads in this district.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNTY LANDOWNERS

DEAR FOLK: Many of you in the Ashville district enjoyed the fox drive on New Year's day, and a number of other drives, are planning this month in other townships. As you fire off this sport try some crow shooting. During the fall and early winter, Pickaway-co has had more of these pirates than in many years. Residents in many districts have complained of them in huge flocks. Crows kill chickens and take a heavy toll of wild life. One hunter recently erected a mounted owl near a roosting place and by using a "call" killed about 100 birds. A few organized crow shoots would reduce the population of these robbers.

CIRCUITEER

TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

PUPILS: Today is the final one of your holiday vacation, the only long freedom from classes granted you during the school year. The vacation gave you an opportunity to rest and also to brush up on all your subjects preparatory to starting the new year. I urge you to adopt resolutions to study more sincerely in all your classes and to obey your teacher at all times.

The trainman went on: "Who was in office but Hoover? Did he do anything for us? Not a thing. The banks didn't close because the people were afraid of what Roosevelt would do when he got into office. They were praying he would get into office sooner, for Hoover didn't seem to know what to do."

"And since Roosevelt has been in office, banks that seemed hopelessly gone have begun paying off some. My bank has, I know."

CHAPTER 34
LARRABEE finally called to me from the hall, and I opened my door. He came in, and sat down in my rocker.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting so long, but I didn't want you to go downstairs. I trust you, Mrs. Penny, but I was afraid some hint of the second murder might show in your face. When I tell those folk down there, I want it to come as a complete surprise—to everybody but the murderer."

"You think one of them—did this?" "What else can I think? There is no one concealed in the house. Even the trunk room and the basement have been searched carefully. Certainly, none of my men would steal a carving knife and kill Della Randall. Of course, one of those people down in the living room killed her, and Grace Bowers is among the bunch."

"I told Della to get her as soon as she finished in the kitchen. She's with the rest of them."

My little bedside clock pointed hands at 10:30. Two hours since we had finished dinner. I had been nearly an hour alone in my room. "And, Mrs. Penny, Della was killed before dinner. She was killed from 5 to 7. My men were in the house during dinner. No one came upstairs during that time, not even Grace Bowers. We know that none of us at the table left the room, but I wasn't sure about Grace. My men say no one came upstairs. If Mrs. Bowers killed Della she must have come up before dinner. Did you notice when you went in and out of the kitchen whether she was there all the time?"

"I sighed. "Every time I went into the kitchen Grace was there. There wasn't much time, you know, after we discovered that the knife was gone until we ate dinner."

"No, there wasn't. It was 6:30 when we reached the kitchen after taking the room more than 10 minutes. I knew what he was thinking. That if Grace was the murderer, she would have had plenty of time to go upstairs the back way, kill Della and be down again when I went back to the kitchen. But I told him that when I returned to the kitchen from the sitting room, Grace was frying squash in deep fat."

"You can't leave deep fat boiling on a stove! Lieutenant Larrabee, without standing over it every minute. You may not know anything about cooking, but you know that. You can't leave it alone. When I came back into the kitchen, half the squash was done and draining."

"I see," he said, reflectively, and I knew I had picked one of his theories. But I don't see why Grace should be the murderer. She acted mighty mysterious about that. I agreed with that.

"What else besides the gloves did you find in Della's room?" "Nothing, Mrs. Penny. Absolutely nothing. Not even a strand of hair on the floor. This is remarkable, but I don't like the joking. The door knobs had both been wiped clean as in the case of Darlen's murder. We messed up the outside one, but the other inside is clean. A whistle of any fingerprints. Same technique used as in the Darlen killing. Same murderer. Whoever the killer is around this house, Mrs. Penny, he likes long dangerous carving knives, and is careful not to leave any traces behind. Of course, it's no credit to me that I locked the stable after the horse was stolen—for that's what this second murder amounts to."

"Didn't you search the living room, Ross?"

"Don't be flippant, Lieutenant Larrabee."

"You're taking this pretty hard, aren't you?"

"I couldn't answer. I kept saying over and over to myself that a few hours ago Della had been alive, and now she was dead, she who had never harmed anyone."

"You can help me a little more if you will. I want to know where you got Grace Bowers."

"Still harping about Grace even after what I had said about her frying the squash in boiling fat. Which showed me how much a man knows about cooking."

"You mean her references?" "Yes."

"I tried to think what Grace's references had been, but I couldn't. 'I'll ask her. Eight years is a long time, you know, and I can't remember where she worked before she came to me. I have the reference some place, because I never throw away anything like that, but it'll be easier to ask her."

Larrabee shook his head. "If you can possibly find the letter of recommendation I'd like that much better than for you to ask her. I don't want her to know I'm interested in her past."

"The key to her is in the trunk room in an old file case, but I'm not sure. Want it now?" I dreaded trying to find it then because of what I had to do for poor Della, but if he wanted the reference tonight...

He didn't. Morning would do. I hurried to my room, a bit more contented when he said that everything would be all right that night. He was leaving two policemen on each floor, and he himself was going to occupy the couch in the library once he wanted to sleep, which he doubted.

The key to Della's room was found early the next morning by Kirk Larrabee himself in a silver bud vase in the living room. The bud vase was small, perhaps five inches in height and no larger in circumference than a quarter. It contained besides the key only one rose, which I had put there myself two days before.

I was in the kitchen when Larrabee came in with the vase and the key in his hand to find Sergeant Ross who was having a cup of coffee.

"Didn't you search the living room, Ross?" he bellowed at the sergeant.

"I did, sir," Ross answered, jumping hastily to his feet. He was haggard for want of sleep, but Larrabee was haggard, too.

"Of course you didn't think of looking in this bud vase! At least I got no report that there was a key in the vase!" When Larrabee wanted to be sarcastic, he could make anyone cringe.

"I did look in the vase, sir, that same one, when I searched the room. Not that I expected to find the knife in such a small place, but I wasn't missing anything. I emptied the water from the vase in a cup, after removing the rose and there was nothing in it. No key. It must have been put there later, when all the folks were in the room. I tell you the key wasn't in the vase when I looked at 8 o'clock."

Larrabee grunted and twisted the key in his fingers.

"Then, there's no doubt but that the murderer was one of the group in the living room. After Della was killed, the key was carried by the murderer downstairs into the dining room. It was in the room while we ate dinner. It went out of the room after dinner, somewhere on the murderer's person. Why it wasn't thrown out of a window before the murderer came to the dining room, I don't know. Forgetfulness, maybe, unless the murderer wanted to plant it on someone later and didn't get the chance. That's probably it."

"When he or she saw that something was up—for it was apparent to everybody who was in the living room—the key was stuffed into the bud vase and left there. I was looking around this morning and found it. It's the key to Della's room, all right. I tried it before I hunted you up, Ross. Lord, I don't know why I didn't search everybody who came into the dining room. But I wasn't looking for a key then. I was looking for a knife, fully 15 inches from the tip of the blade to the end of the handle. If I'd found an extra key I wouldn't have known what it meant."

It was a cloudy day and Melton, a Southerner, was cold. In a moment of inspiration he addressed his stand-in Walter De Palma. "Hey, Wall, how'd you like to take a rest and let me stand in for you?"

De Palma apparently thought well of the idea so he took Melton's seat.

"Now this's better," exclaimed the Georgia-born radio star as he rubbed his hands in the hot rays of a big studio lamp.

OPEN LETTERS

TO MAYOR GRAHAM

DEAR SIR: On the first day of your administration you took action which deserves comment. It is your effort to enforce traffic regulations, and to seek closer co-operation between your police department, the sheriff and his deputies, and the state highway patrol. The city's traffic fund could be increased by a large amount annually if the persons who carelessly drive through red lights, endangering their lives and properties and those of other motorists were ordered into court. Whether you fine them is up to you to determine, but I believe your stern edict that the law be enforced will do much toward reducing accidents. It has long been a fact that petty jealousy has done much to reduce the measure of co-operation between city and county police, and I believe your overtures to Sheriff Radcliff will help create an efficient situation that has not existed for a long while.

CIRCUITEER

TO BUSINESS MEN

MERCHANTS: A new year has arrived and with it comes new high hopes for success. Leading manufacturers, mercantile leaders, and others are predicting a continued upswing in the new year, and are putting forward every effort to do their part. In a large way, the success of 1936 rests on your own shoulders. Will you be aggressive, seek business, or will you sit back and lament because some other business man is doing more than you. Let people know what you are selling; inform them of your prices, your bargains; keep your stores clean and attractive, and stock with up-to-date goods. Many factors can help business, but your own ability means much to your success.

CIRCUITEER

TO POTENTIAL CANDIDATES

CITIZENS: The time of the year is fast approaching when candidates for various Pickaway-co offices will be circulating nominating petitions. Several county offices, including two commissioners' jobs, sheriff, recorder, clerk of courts, coroner, prosecuting attorney, will be contested in the next election. There are many persons who believe they are entitled to some kind of a county job and may get into the race for that reason. It is up to the two political parties to use their influence to weed out the candidates, to be certain their party is represented by the best possible nominees. Many elections have been spoiled because many persons sought nominations, the winner having to face combined opposition from all the persons he or she defeated. I urge the citizens of the county to be fair to their fellows, and to themselves, to use careful judgment before entering political contests.

CIRCUITEER

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

GENTLEMEN: Your recent action in posting a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons stealing livestock and grain in the county is a splendid move toward finer law enforcement. Sheriff Charles Radcliff deserves bouquets for his record in clearing thefts and I feel this reward will aid him materially in solving many stubborn cases. The knowledge of a reward often brings information to officers that otherwise could not be obtained.

CIRCUITEER

TO HIGHWAY, STREET WORKERS

GENTLEMEN: You are to be complimented on your fine work in clearing the streets and highways after the recently heavy snowfall. Many of you left your festal boards on the holidays to make the highways safe for travelers. The distribution of sand and cinders prevented many accidents and Pickaway-co has a record of no serious accidents during the holiday season. Travelers have been loud in their praise of the condition of roads in this district.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNTY LANDOWNERS

DEAR FOLK: Many of you in the Ashville district enjoyed the fox drive on New Year's day, and a number of other drives are planned this month in other townships. As you tire of this sport try some crow shooting. During the fall and early winter Pickaway-co has had more of these pirates than in many years. Residents in many districts have complained of them in huge flocks. Crows kill chickens and take a heavy toll of wild life. One hunter recently erected a mounted owl near a roosting place and by using a "call" killed about 100 birds. A few organized crowd shoots would reduce the population of these robbers.

CIRCUITEER

TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

PUPILS: Today is the final one of your holiday vacation, the only long freedom from classes granted you during the school year. The vacation gave you an opportunity to rest and also to brush up on all your subjects preparatory to starting the new year. I urge you to adopt resolutions to study more sincerely in all your classes and to obey your teacher at all times.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—There's a Hindu fortune teller here, praying for business. His auto trailer is parked on a lot near the largest hotel. But his business is bad because everybody else is busy.

That's the way some of the natives look on the 1936 political race, too. The Republicans will predict dire happenings unless their man is elected president. But the folk will be so busy that they will say "Oh, we guess we're doing as well as could be expected under Roosevelt."

Of course, this is in the south. And the south will be Democratic anyway. Don't let any soothsayer fool you on that. The conservative, states' rights Democrats are as mad as a wet hen concerning Mr. Roosevelt, but it would be considered heresy to leave the Democratic party.

Besides, any conservative Democrat running for re-election is certain to come out "wholeheartedly" for Mr. Roosevelt prior to the primaries (which, in the south, is tantamount to an election). Farmers and workers are strongly pro-Roosevelt—and (as one person remarked to me yesterday) "there aren't many rich folk here." Even the former pro-Long men in Louisiana now are saying: "We're for Roosevelt."

STRONGEST CANDIDATE

Peculiarly enough, Herbert Hoover probably is the strongest Republican possibility in the south.

There are three reasons: (1) He has a powerful hold on Republicans in the south, since he appointed nearly all the available Republicans to office; (2) he "saved" the south from Al Smith in 1928; and (3) he is the best known of the Republicans to the south.

Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, however, has a strong following in regions that border the south.

Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher, is not generally known; nor is Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, on the other hand, is very well known; but there is no likelihood that the hand-picked southern delegations would be for him.

As for Justice Owen J. Roberts, of the U. S. supreme court—it is doubtful whether he would obtain more than a handful of votes in all the south. Besides, a man from Pennsylvania would carry none of the west.

CONSTITUTION

The Republicans are going on the wrong assumption if they believe that nullification by the U. S. supreme court of New Deal laws will be popular in the states' right south.

On the contrary, because of the large agricultural percentage of the population, such supreme court action would likely cause the rise in the south of a concerted movement to restrict the power of the supreme court to nullify acts of congress.

Belief is held that the constitution is sufficiently protective, but that it implies that congress shall represent the will of the people. Thus belief is gaining that the supreme court itself may be causing the chief injury to the constitution, and that either congress or a constitutional amendment ought to prescribe definitely how far the court can go toward nullification.

The AAA, the Bankhead cotton act, the Tugwell social projects, the TVA, even the Wagner labor law, are looked upon by the mass of southern people as essentials to their progress. To have such props removed from them at this critical period of their recovery might cause serious repercussions.

The south has gone through a severe period of depression than the north—and it believes artificial aid, contributed in by the north, is no more than just. Besides, it believes that if the north were not so "greedy" with its tariff for industry, other nations could send goods over here and exchange them for southern crops, thus increasing the net return for the entire country—north and south alike. For the southerner is a good spender for northern products.

DOESN'T WORK

A trainman who lost his savings expressed himself angrily over Hoover's attempt to blame President Roosevelt for the bank failures.

The trainman went on: "Who was in office but Hoover? Did he do anything for us? Not a thing. The banks didn't close because the people were afraid of what Roosevelt would do when he got into office. They were praying he would get into office sooner, for Hoover didn't seem to know what to do.

It was a cloudy day and Melton, a Southerner, was cold. In a moment of inspiration he addressed his stand-in Walter De Palma, "Hey, Wall, how'd you like to take a rest and let me stand in for you?"

De Palma apparently thought well of the idea so he took Melton's seat.

CRUCIAL PLAYS

EVERY INTERESTING hand offers at least one crucial play—perhaps that may be for declarer, perhaps for a defender. Spread hands or holdings that can be bid or played only one way, are too stupid to interest anyone except the chap whose sole interest is the number of points obtainable. While today's hands may not appear of especial interest, yet there were several critical situations.

♣ J 7

Bidding went: South, 1-Diamond; West, 2-Clubs; the passes of North and East brought to the dealer his first problem: should he double (demanding some bid of partner)? South doubled; West, 3-Clubs; again South doubled. When North bid 3-Hearts, South raised the call to 4-Hearts.

The K of clubs took the first defensive trick. The Q won the second trick. Dummy was forced to ruff the Ace of clubs. East discarded a low diamond.

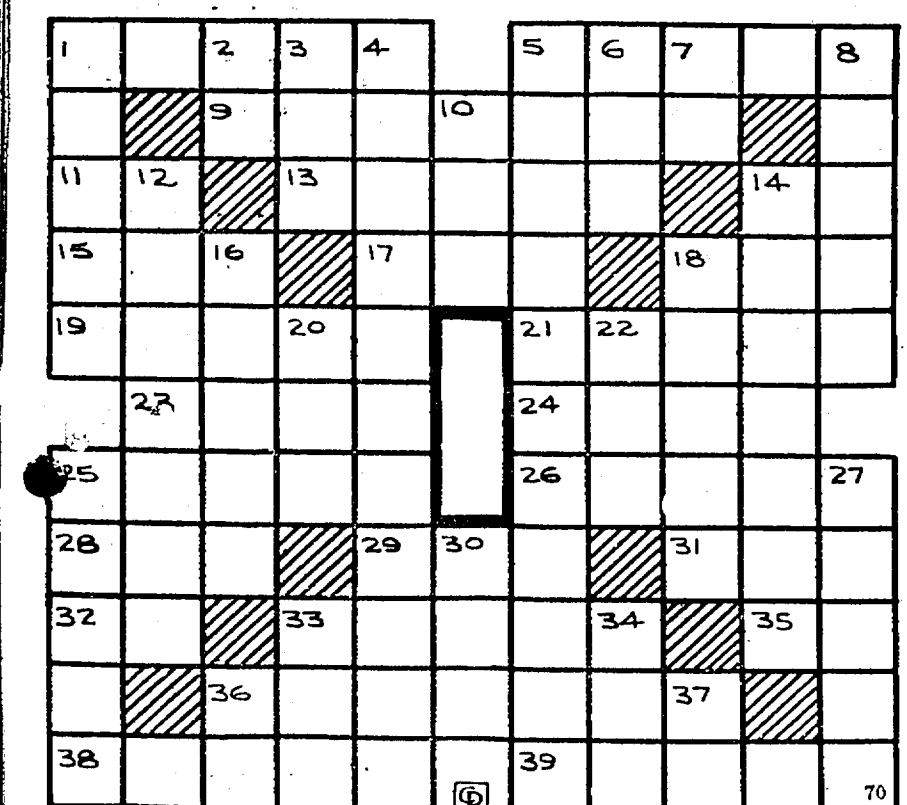

Declarer's Q of hearts and dummy's K won the next two tricks, pulling all opposing trumps except the 10, which declarer was not sure who held. The Ace and K of diamonds dropped the J and 10. Here was a critical situation. It was not certain whether or not West was playing his cards honestly. Another lead of diamonds might afford one defender or the other a ruff, definitely killing all hope of game. The last opposing trump must be pulled. Dummy's last trump and the one held by East were picked up by the Ace of hearts, leaving declarer one added trump. The critical situation facing declarer at this juncture was how dummy's spades should be played. Should the double finesse of the 9 be risked? The answer to that question was, No. The reason was that only a single spade trick from dummy was required to yield game. Declarer could discard one of his spades on one of dummy's diamonds.

Declarer's 8 of spades was covered with dummy's J, fortunately for North, driving out West's Ace, for the third defensive trick. West led and North ruffed with his last heart, the 9 of clubs.

At the eleventh trick North led the 7 of spades, and dummy was in with the K of spades. Dummy's two good diamonds just enabled contract to be fulfilled. Suppose declarer had overlooked leaving dummy's last heart until it became necessary for a spade to be led from the North hand; without that card of exit opponents must have been given two spade tricks, instead of a single spade trick. That would have defeated the contract. It viewed after play, sometimes it is surprising to find the number of crucial plays, perhaps taken almost automatically.

SPORTSMEN TO STOCK PICKAWAY-CO WITH RABBITS

300 PURCHASED FROM MISSOURI; TO FREE COONS

Rausenberger, State League Official, Buys 40 "Bunnies" to Distribute

More than 300 rabbits will be distributed in Pickaway-co this year by the Pickaway Farmer's and Sportsman's association, H. E. Betz, president, announced Friday. The "bunnies" will be shipped here from Missouri and their purchase was made possible by local sportsmen buying licenses from club members, who turn the fees over to the association for restocking purposes.

Ed Rausenberger, local sportsman, and treasurer of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, has purchased 40 rabbits himself for the county distribution.

In addition to the purchase of rabbits, the association has kept 14 raccoon at the Canal dam for many months to be released at the close of the "coon" season.

The nomination committee of the local club will meet next week to list officers for 1936. The date for the annual meeting has not been definitely set.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(UP)—

Forty-two years ago a wealthy American bought an "all expense" ticket for a European tour from Thomas Cook and son-Wagon-Lits, Inc. He didn't use it, but kept it until he died last year. Today his daughter presented it for redemption. New York Cook's officers passed the buck to their London office after finding that railroads and hotels which had been paid for transportation and accommodations had become defunct and momentary standards had so altered as to make computation of a refund almost impossible.

POLL AGAINST NEW DEAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(UP)—The seventh weekly report of the Literary Digest's poll disclosed today that slightly more than 60 per cent of ballots to date were opposed to the acts and policies of the Roosevelt administration.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Excellent speech becometh not a fool; much less do lying lips a prince.—Proverbs 17:7.

New Year's day meant more than just the start of another year to two local brothers. It marked the 36th anniversary of their entry into the furniture business. On Jan. 1, 1900, Charles and D. E. Mason purchased the stock of a Cincinnati firm operating a furniture business in the present location of their store on N. Court-st. At the time of the purchase, Daniel Ryan, former councilman now residing in Columbus, was a clerk in the store. Previously the store had been operated by Samuel Kinder, father of Walter Kinder, local resident. The Mason Bros. store is one of the finest equipped small city furniture stores in this section of the state. In recent years the store has been greatly enlarged and many fine improvements added.

W. M. Justus, city service director, will undergo an operation in University hospital within the next few days for a hip ailment.

Improved Order of Red Men and the Degree of Pochontas will have a joint public installation tonight at 8 o'clock in the City hall. A. P. Hatch, of Athens, great sachem of Ohio, will install the tribe officers and Clara Cunliff, of Murray City past great Pochontas, will install the degree officers. The degree staff of Adelphi will seat the officers and refreshments will be served.

President Talks to Nation At 9; Problems Are Faced

capital is tense today. But better business has dispelled at least some of the gloom of recent years and hot political rivalry is substituted now for hot international hatreds of April 1917.

President is Host

Mr. Roosevelt broke the strain of a weeks' solid work on his annual message by entertaining at the White House last night for the Vice President and Mrs. Garner. There was a distinguished company of senators and congressmen—both parties with Democrats most numerous—and a few lesser citizens. Miss Lily Pons, petite and pretty, sang for the White House party and Cornelia Otis Skinner did skits—you have probably heard the one about the lady from Nebraska being presented at Buckingham Palace.

Tonight Mrs. Roosevelt and the cabinet ladies will be in the galleries along with the wives of senators and congressmen, other notables and a sprinkling of persons distinguished for nothing much except the ability to get gallery tickets which are extremely scarce. There are only 600 seats and fully 6,000 waiting sitters.

The schedule is for both house and senate to recess shortly after meeting at noon. It is customary to adjourn the first day in respect to any deceased members. Sen. Thomas D. Schall and Sen. Huey P. Long died violent deaths after congress quit last August. But instead of adjourning until tomorrow, the congress will recess until evening and the senate probably will honor its dead by avoiding a Saturday session.

After tonight's gala meeting the congress will next hear from Mr. Roosevelt on Monday when clerks in each house will read his annual budget message. From that moment on the congress will have observed the proprieties and the political war will be on.

Must Reverse Tide

Mr. Roosevelt has heard from Democratic congressmen fresh from the constituencies that his personal and political popularity are waning generally throughout the nation. The New Deal is in a side slip and tonight's radio program is the president's first move to bring it out. Political observers believe the president remains the favorite in the 1936 presidential sweepstakes but that opinion is predicted on expectation that he can reverse the tide which has been flowing against him.

This will be a political congress dominated by ten or a dozen major issues all related to the scramble to possess the White House and majorities in both houses after next November's polling. The administration concedes defeat on the question of some form of payment of the veterans' bonus. Mr. Roosevelt knows his veto will not prevail again.

The neutrality plan hastily enacted last session expires Feb. 29 and must be extended. At issue is the extent to which congress will make peace bulwarks mandatory rather than permissive at Mr. Roosevelt's discretion.

Agricultural relief still is a political question and may be the top issue of this session if the Supreme Court rules Monday or thereafter that A. A. processing taxation is unconstitutional in whole or part. Governmental economy, currency inflation, silver and what to do about it, the question of further regulation of business, the Townsend Old Age Pension plan, ship subsidies and national defense will form the background of the political circus which congress usually becomes in a presidential election year.

To Watch Candidates

The senate offers three or four Republican presidential potentialities. The next five months will make or break them as aspirants for the favor of the National convention which meets in Cleveland June 9. Republicans and voters generally will observe particularly the voting records of Sen. William E. Borah, R., Idaho, and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich.

Sixteen people were killed in Pickaway-co during 1935 in automobile accidents. This is believed to be the highest toll ever taken in the county on highway crashes.

GROUNDHOG RUNS ABOUT IN WINTER, IS KILLED

One groundhog in Madison-co forgot this was the time of year he should be sleeping. While hunting near for rabbits during the recent snow a resident killed a large groundhog when it attempted to hide in a culvert. Groundhogs are usually about as scarce as mosquitoes this season of the year.

SPORTSMEN TO STOCK PICKAWAY-CO WITH RABBITS

300 PURCHASED FROM MISSOURI; TO FREE COONS

Rausenberger, State League Official, Buys 40 "Bunnies" to Distribute

More than 300 rabbits will be distributed in Pickaway-co this year by the Pickaway Farmer's and Sportsman's association. H. E. Betz, president, announced Friday. The "bunnies" will be shipped here from Missouri and their purchase was made possible by local sportsmen buying licenses from club members, who turn the fees over to the association for restocking purposes. Ed Rausenberger, local sportsman, and treasurer of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, has purchased 40 rabbits himself for the county distribution. In addition to the purchase of rabbits, the association has kept 14 raccoon at the Canal dam for many months to be released at the close of the "coon" season. The nomination committee of the local club will meet next week to list officers for 1936. The date for the annual meeting has not been definitely set.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(UP)—Forty-two years ago a wealthy American bought an "all expense" ticket for a European tour from Thomas Cook and son-Wagon-Lits, Inc. He didn't use it, but kept it until he died last year. Today his daughter presented it for redemption. New York Cook's officers passed the buck to their London office after finding that railroads and hotels which had been paid for transportation and accommodations had become defunct and momentary standards had so altered as to make computation of a refund almost impossible.

POLL AGAINST NEW DEAL
NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(UP)—The seventh weekly report of the Literary Digest's poll disclosed today that slightly more than 60 per cent of ballots to date were opposed to the acts and policies of the Roosevelt administration.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT
Excellent speech becometh not a fool; much less do lying lips a prince.—Proverbs 17:7.

New Year's day meant more than just the start of another year to two local brothers. It marked the 36th anniversary of their entry into the furniture business. On Jan. 1, 1900, Charles and D. E. Mason purchased the stock of a Cincinnati firm operating a furniture business in the present location of their store on N. Court-st. At the time of the purchase, Daniel Ryan, former councilman now residing in Columbus, was a clerk in the store. Previously the store had been operated by Samuel Kindler, father of Walter Kindler, local resident. The Mason Bros. store is one of the finest equipped small city furniture stores in this section of the state. In recent years the store has been greatly enlarged and many fine improvements added.

W. M. Justus, city service director, will undergo an operation in University hospital within the next few days for a hip ailment.

Improved Order of Red Men and the Degree of Pochontas will have a joint public installation tonight at 8 o'clock in the City hall. A. P. Hatch, of Athens, great sachem of Ohio, will install the tribe officers and Clara Cunliff, of Murray City past great Pochontas, will install the degree officers. The degree staff of Adelphi will seat the officers and refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Oliver Henson and Mrs. H. E. Louis, New Holland, are recovering from burns suffered last week when a coffee urn exploded in the Methodist church in that village.
